Merciless Quacks,

if not from premature graves. The cause of infection in the Compound Buchu is the only article worthy of the least confidence of the afflicted in performing

A SAFE CURE.

It contains no narcotic, mercury or other injurious drug, but is purely VEGETABLE compound, in either sex without hindrance from business or exposure. Full directions for use accompany each medicine. Reader, if you have any of the above complaints, do not neglect them.

Delays are Dangerous.

With this medicine you can cure yourself, and thus prevent all exposure.

Truth must and will prevail.

This medicine speedily and effectually cures the most virulent form of secret diseases, and eradicates every particle of infectious matter from the system, restoring to a perfect state of Health and Purity—and is a medicine which must be sought for every body, even the simply delicate to the confirmed and debilitated invalid, for equal is to be found it acting both as a Cure and Preventive of any of the above ailments.

HELMBOLD'S

HIGHLY CONCENTRATED

Compound Fluid Extract Sarsaparilla,

FOR

Purifying the Blood, removing all diseases arising from the effects of Mercury, exposure and improper or injudicious constitutional disease arising from an impure state of the Blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ulcerations of the Throat and Legs, Pains and Swellings of the Bones, Tetter, Pimples on the Face and all scaly Eruptions of the Skin.

It is gratifying to the proprietor of these medicines to be able to state that in many nearly three years since they were first introduced, during which time they have been extensively used in various parts of the United States, and have been given a patient and practitioner the highest degree of satisfaction in the various cases in which they have been employed whether in town, country, hospital or private practice; they have invariably given the most decided and unequivocal satisfaction and produced the most salutary and beneficial effects numerous letters have been received from the most distinguished physicians in the country, and from professors of several medical colleges commending in the highest terms the value of these medicines and their superiority over all other preparations for such complaints as the proprietor recommends. Numerous preparations of Sarsaparilla and Buchu, and various modes of preparing them have been given, all of which of course will differ according to the mode of preparation each individual may adopt

These medicines require considerable care in the preparation, and the employment of different menstrua in successive operation to take up the fructive matters and in consequence, are most frequently unprepossessing made, and not unfrequently much impaired, if not rendered totally inert, by the injudicious and unskillful management of one unacquainted with pharmaceutical preparations. It is therefore, of the highest consideration and importance to the public, and to the faculty, that there should be standard preparations of uniform strength and possessing the most advantages To effect this and obviate the evil alluded to, I have made a number of experiments to ascertain the most effectual mode of extracting the virtues of the Sarsaparilla and the Buchu, and to discover the most desirable form for their exhibition. The experiments have been most favorably attended with much pleasure I now offer to the public and the faculty my Compound Fluid Extracts, which contain all the virtues of the articles they are represented to be, made from in a highly concentrated form and are the most active preparations which can be made. Two table spoonfuls of the Extract Sarsaparilla added to a pint of water is equal to the Lisbon diet drink, and one bottle equals in strength one gallon of Syrup or decoction as usually made.

Compound Extract Buchu, $1 per bottle, or 6 for $5

Extract Sarsaparilla,

Certificates of cures and recommendations from distinguished professors and physicians, will accompany each wholesale or retail package.

MY FIRST TEMPTATION

A STORY FOR YOUNG MEN.

It is an early age I lost my father, and as he left us with but little of this world's goods, it soon became necessary that I should find some employment. I was then thirteen years of age, and not very stout or strong, but yet with a will to do anything that could be found for me to do. At length my mother made an arrangement with a carpenter by the name of Morris, and I was taken into his shop as an apprentice. With him I remained two years, but at the end of that time I became so worn down by the hard work imposed upon me, that my mother resolved I should remain there no longer. My sister Lucy, who was two years older than myself had long detected my failing strength—and it was mainly through her efforts that I was removed from the place, for I should never have complained.

I was now fifteen—tall, slim and pale, and I knew that I could not stand any sort of work which taxed my physical strength to any great extent. But fortune favored me. A Mr. Joseph Evered, who kept a dry goods store near by, was in want of a salesman, and through my sister's influence I obtained the place. Mr. Evered had a daughter, Julia, about my own age, who was very intimate with Lucy and it was by her intercession with her father that Lucy gained her point.

I was duly installed in my place, and I was soon happy and contented, for my employer was kind, and an intimacy sprang up between myself and Julia, which offered me purer bliss than I had ever before experienced. Thus matters passed on for a year, and at the end of that time my health was restored, and I had so far gained upon the confidence of Mr Evered that now he trusted me with some of his most important business. Only one thing troubled me. I was not receiving such wages as I fancied my services entitled me to. In fact, I was in debt. I had purchased a suit of clothes of a tailor in the neighborhood, and was owing for them. The tailor wanted his money, and I had promised him he should have it at a certain time but that time came and passed, and I could not pay him. He threatened, and I promised anew. O, how many times I wished that I had never bought those clothes. I could have got along without them, and I resolved that never again would I buy anything which I could not pay for on the spot. But that did not help the case.

One evening, I sat alone in the store. It was Saturday evening, and the day had been a busy one. We had sold a great quantity of goods and the money-draw was well filled. Slowly a demon rose before me, and began to advise me. He pointed to the money drawer, and whispered. "There are the means for paying your debt." I knew that Mr Evered had no knowledge of the amount of money there, for he knew not how much I had sold. I could take even fifty dollars, and he might never miss it, for I had sold a great quantity of stuff which he had no account of. I had promised the tailor that he should have the money that very night, and I had planned to get Mr. Evered to advance me the necessary sum. I had not been spending money foolishly, but from my pittance I supported my mother, and that ate it all up.

For a long while I sat and looked upon that drawer, and all the while the tempter was persuading me. I knew that young clerks often did such things, and that sometimes necessity compelled them to it, at least so I then thought. How could I meet my employer again without the money? I could not and at length I resolved that I would not. I arose and went to the drawer. I opened it and saw the bank notes which had been hurriedly jammed in there! counted out twenty dollars! My head trembled, and my heart beat quickly. I thrust the notes into my pocket, and then hastened back to my seat, and ere long afterward my employer entered.

"Well, Charles," said he, "I guess we'll shut up now."

I arose and went out, and put up the shutters and when I came back I found Evered engaged in counting the money. As I approached him he eyed me with a sharp, searching look, and I trembled like an aspen.

"What did you?" he asked.

"Nothing sir," I answered, trying to compose myself.

"But there must be something the matter," he resumed, "for you look pale as a ghost."

"I am tired," I said.

"Well, well, you have worked hard today, and you may go home and rest."

With a desperate effort I managed to compose myself, I thanked him for his kindness, and then seized my hat and left the store. The fresh air revived me somewhat, and I hurried on to the tailor's and paid him. For a moment my heart was lighter, but it was only for a moment. When I reached the street again, the thought of what I had done came upon me with a whelming force, and I was miserable. When I reached home I professed to be sick, and went to bed, at once. But my mother, sick and weak herself, came up to my bed, and wanted me to take some medicine. She gave a start as she came up the clothes snugly and kissed me, she said

"Be careful Charles, for you would be pained indeed to have you [illegible] God keep and bless you. Good night."

O, how those last words rang in my ears—What would my mother, she would feel—if she knew the [illegible] thief! It was a long, weary night before I could give the word shape or form, but it came at last: I could not sleep. It came back. Thief! thief! rang in my soul like a knell. The agony was upon me so intense that all the conceptions of pain were as nothing. The night passed away in sleepless, phantom like restlessness, and when the morning came, it arose and walked out before my sister was up. I did not rest until breakfast was ready, and then I had no downward signs of my distress. The mark was made upon it, the worm was gnawing at my heart.

That afternoon I went with my sister to meeting, as I entered the church, I met the gaze of Mr. Evered. He looked sharply, and I saw Julia watched me from upon his face. After the services were over, I saw him in conversation with the tailor. I noticed how earnestly they spoke—and once I saw the tailor point his finger towards me. I felt sure, then, that all was discovered.

"For heaven's sake, Charles," cried Lucy, as she caught my arm, "what is the matter?"

"He's faint! he's faint!" I heard a low, tremulous voice, and on turning, I saw Julia Evered. She was right—and she knew at that moment came the conviction that she loved me. But that thought came [illegible] and then I knew she would [illegible] despise me.

Sick and faint I hurried away, and to all the anxious inquiries of Lucy I only replied that I was not well. O, how miserable I felt, for I knew that my employer had detected the theft in church was [illegible] proof enough, but his [illegible] with the tailor made it sure. That [illegible] known I dared not go to church, and my mother worried over me. Wish would [illegible] have let me alone, I might have been [illegible] but she clung close to me, and [illegible] to her—the first falsehood I ever spoke to that noble woman!

Another night of restless misery, and then I came to the severest part of all. I must meet my employer! It was [illegible] when I descended to the kitchen and found my mother as pale and deathly as death itself. For the moment I forgot my own pain, and hastened to her side. She gazed up into my face, with such a look as, [illegible] I may never see again.

"Dont ask me any questions, Charles," she said, "but go at once to the store. Mr. Evered wants you immediately."

I could not ask a question—I could not speak. Without breakfast, without waiting to see Lucy—I started from the house. People whom I met gazed at me sharply, and once I heard the word thief pronounced. Or, Evered had told the story of my crime! How could he?—No, no, 'twas the tailor who had told it, for my employer would never have done it. Yet—I was known. I trembled, suddenly the thought of flight occurred to me. Why had I not thought of it before? Why should I stay longer where shame, and shame only, could be mine? I turned to flee, and just then my sister came rushing after me, with her hair floating wildly in the morning air, and her face as pale as death.

"O, Charles" she uttered, "come with me at once! Come, come, our mother is dying!"

My sister seized my hand, and by force dragged me away. I reached my home, I knew not how, for my reason almost left me. Into the little bed room Lucy dragged me, and there lay my mother, sick and cold.

"O, Charles, you have killed her" sobbed my sister, as she threw herself upon the bed. "She could not stand your disgrace!"

One moment I gazed upon the pale, cold form, and then a wild insanity of cry broke from my lips. I plunged madly forward upon the bed.

"Charles? Charles!"

I started up. I felt a heavy hand upon my shoulder, and again my name was called.

"What is the matter?" Come, rouse up. For mercy's sake, what ails you?"

It was Evered who spoke. I was sitting on the stool behind the counter, but my head had fallen forward upon a pile of goods that lay heaped up before me. Instinctively I cast my eyes upon the money-drawer, and slowly the truth worked itself to my mind. A cold clammy sweat was upon my brow, a pain in my limbs, and I trembled like an aspen.

"What ails you, Charles?" Mr. Evered kindly asked.

"My head—such a dream I involuntarily gasped."

"Well, well—if its nothing worse than that I am glad. But come I want to have a few words of conversation with you before you go."

I was fully aroused now. I looked at the money drawer, though, many times I could realize that I was safe. The tempter had gone, but an angel hand had beaten him away. The doors and shutters were closed, and then my employer sat down by my side.

"Well Charles," he commenced, "John has been telling me this afternoon that you wholly support your mother?"

"Yes sir" I tremblingly answered. "My sister thus far has only been able to support herself as the rest came to me."

"But by you she has always. Surely your salary has not sufficient."

"It has, was sufficient at to find her in food and a home. For—for clothing—I have—"

"I think so, eh?"

"Yes sir, but I will never do it again. I will go ragged, if need be, but I will not run in debt."

"Right, right, my boy! But she will get that all right now. I have been thinking for some time of increasing your pay, and I will do so now—not only so, but must put it back to where I first thought best, and that was three months ago. Let's see."

"Three dollars a week for thirteen weeks would be thirty-nine dollars," he said. "Will that square you up?"

"O yes, sir, and more, too."

"Then you shall have that, and hereafter you shall have that amount over each quarter."

He said something more about making me his head clerk sometime, but I did not fully understand him. I received the money, paid the tailor, and when I had reached my home, I had become calm and happy. I told my mother and Lucy of my good fortune, and they wept for joy.

Yet I could not help shuddering fearfully whenever I thought of that terrible vision which came upon me while the tempter was with me. But—let me say it again—'twas an angel's visit.

Years have passed away since that time. Mr. Evered is an old man—my children are his grandchildren, and the store that was once his, is now half mine. He has retired, and the other half of the extensive business belongs to Lucy's husband. My mother still lives, and, thank God, can yet bless her son that he has never yet called one drop of sorrow to her life cup."

Sewing Machines

To Clothiers, Tailors, &c.

NOW IS THE TIME, during the Intervening hour, before the hurry of business sets in, to introduce the Sewing Machines. An investment of $126 in a Sewing Machine will procure more profit than a much larger sum invested in any other way. Having settled all suits against Machines, there is not a shadow of claim against them. The Excelsior and Dorcas machines are infringing our patent, we have prosecuted them in the United States Court, having forty trials in operation, and we have come out triumphantly. Next the Wheeler & Wilson, and the Grover & Baker, and expected to come off this month. We therefore caution the public not to purchase any of the infringing Machines, if they desire to escape litigation, for we shall enforce our rights.

I. M. SINGER & CO.

Sewing Machine!

The great and peculiar advantage of Singer's Sewing Machine is this

One Machine will perform every kind of work perfectly by simply changing the Needle and Thread, the machines are simple in their construction, strong, durable, and not liable to get out of order.

BALTIMORE Jan 8, 1856

Messrs A. A. Hayes, Marshall—Gentlemen At the request of our Agent in Baltimore, in regard to our opinion as to the experience of yours copper coated spikes, we without hesitation, say we believe them the best substitute for copper yet introduced, and better fastening for ships, inasmuch as you have the strength of iron with the preservative qualities of copper.

We have some of your Spikes in old vessels as a substitute for copper, and have had occasion to draw them out a year afterwards, and found their wrought coating as firm as when they were driven, and with no appearance of oxidation.

Very respectfully yours,

BLACK REPUBLICAN FOLLY. The Whig one day last week occupied a column and a half in the childish task of endeavoring to convince the whigs of this State, that, because the Southern members of the party had adopted a platform ignoring the slavery question, they, the whigs of Maine, could do nothing better than to join at once a party which has already proclaimed in advance that they shall make the Kansas question the only issue in our state election. Journal

The "Southern members of the party," have adopted a platform "ignoring" freedom, not the slavery question—adopting the Southern pro-slavery ground, as to the extension of slavery—and declaring that platform the national platform for the suppositious Whig party. And this platform has been ENDORSED AND ADOPTED by one of the Straightout organs in Maine, viz the Bath Tribune. Does the Bangor Journal adopt it or reject? Do the Bangor Journal men go in for the proposed "National" Whig Convention at Louisville, in the slave State of Kentucky, called upon the above platform—or do they not? Or do they intend to ignore everything in the shape of political principles, and fight for pro-slavery loco focoism in Maine, and for the retention of their own comfortable offices, with no other stock in trade than the bugbear ghost of Philip Weaver!

The Bangor Journal dislikes to have us expose to the Straight Whigs the selfishness and inconsistency of the men who control that paper, and pours forth a torrent of its dislectable invective upon us therefor. With the fierceness of a bed-bug, it denies our right to "advise the Whigs of this State," and resorts to the stereotyped reply,—"Treachery to Isaac Reed"—which it makes to every candid appeal to the intelligence of the honest Whigs. In this way it still attempts to hood-wink and mislead them, in order to maintain the hold upon the public plunder which the political managers have obtained. Nevertheless, at the risk of still further wounding the sensitive feelings of the Journal, whose editor is in the enjoyment of a couple of comfortable offices, we shall continue, as occasion may demand, to expose the hypocrisy and selfish aims of the coalition managers, and set before honest Whigs their plain duty to the country and to their own professed principles, and urge them to abandon the corrupt alliance.

They must go either with the pro-slavery democracy, or with the party of freedom and of just and honest legislation. Let them choose—but be longer led away by deceptive and lying appeals to them love of the Whig name—a name which has been dishonored and disgraced by self constituted leaders who have abandoned every Whig principle of freedom, and betrayed the party which they lead into a support of its bitter-est political enemies.

CAUTION.—On Sunday afternoon last two children in the eastern part of the city, indulged freely in blowing soap-bubbles through an old tobacco pipe, which had been used for a long time without cleaning. After two hours amusement of this kind they were both seized with vomiting, accompanied with symptoms of excessive collapse, acute inflamation of the stomach supervened, and on Tuesday morning the boy died. The girl still continues very low, but hopes are entertained of her ultimate recovery. The children were undoubtedly poisoned with the essential oil of tobacco received into the stomach in the manner indicated above. It is well known that a very small quantity of this article taken internally will produce death.

Two sons of Samuel D Reed, of East Bradford, were drowned in Dead Stream, on Monday night last. One was aged 11 and the other 13 years. We get the above information from Mr F C Morrill, of the Katahdin Stage line.

THE MENEMON SANFORD.—This spacious and commodious steamer made her first arrival from Boston, yesterday, (Wednesday) afternoon, about 5 o'clock, bringing into the river an immense quantity of freight, and many passengers. Her capacity is three hundred tons or more larger than that of the Boston.

Marshal Farnham informs us that on Tuesday night there were two Irish balls, a concert, and a performance at the theatre, all in operation, and not a person committed to the Watch House for drunkenness.

Hon Chas Lowell was tried at Ellsworth on Monday and Tuesday on charge of libel on Justice Somerby and others, and acquitted after a few minutes absence of the jury. The opening plea was by the Hon. Mr. L——the closing by a learned member of the bar from this city.

Sale of Horses, &c, at Hatch House stable, to-day at 11 o'clock, by S. A. Head.

We are indebted to Bryant's Express for late Boston papers by steamer Sanford.

A SAD CASE. A few days ago, a girl of seventy-six years of age, residing at the South End, Boston, died in consequence of taking oil of tansey to procure abortion. The Traveller states that this young female was a native of Athens, Me., where her parents, who are quite respectable, now live. After leaving her home she resided for a while in Chelsea but afterwards removed to this city, and in company with another female, commenced a life of vice. After the fatal act which caused her death, she dared not call for her parents, but sent for a physician who had known her in her happy girlhood. His presence did not avail to save her life. Her last moments were soothed, however, by the benevolent attentions of a lady at the South End, who also took measures to have her remains placed in a tomb at East Boston.

New Publications.

Harper & Brothers have issued another of their beautiful Classical Library, being a literal translation of the Tragedies of Æschylus, with an introduction and critical and explanatory notes, and an Appendix containing the new readings of "Herman's Posthumous Edition." For sale by Bugbee & Co.

THE CONQUEST IN AMERICA, and its relation to the History of Slavery and to the Emancipation of Colonies. By Arthur Helps 2 vols 12 mo pp. 490 and 479. New York. Harper & Brothers. 1856.

This work comes to us through Messrs. Pettridge & Co., and is issued in neat library style. Based upon a former work by the same author, entitled "The Conquerors of the New World and their Bondsmen," it is very complete and comprehensive upon the topics of which it treats, giving a succinct and reliable narrative of the various Spanish Conquests in America, the labors of years have been bestowed in the necessary researches. Some portions of the narratives of the early Spanish adventures are intensely interesting, and the whole work is well supplied with illustrative maps.

The author says,

Other men have written, and I believe successfully, of the various conquests and discoveries in America; but I have been obliged, both for the reader's sake and my own, to tell my story in my own way. It does not suffice to be told in any one discovery. It sometimes implies wholly in the New World, sometimes wholly at the court of Spain. It depends, at one time, on some powerful minister, at another upon some resolute conqueror. It follows the course of the remarkable men of the day, and now rises up in one colony, now in another. Its direction not being governed by the importance of the colonies. Guatimala, for instance—a country of which we have had little in Europe—becomes, at a most important field for investigation in the general history of Spanish Conquest in America. A number of remarkable men appear to live in Guatemala at the same time—their proceedings give the most apt illustration of their different characters respecting slavery, colonization, and general government. Hence Guatemala becomes, for several years, the geographical centre of the narrative, as the Pearl Coast had been a former period.

The work is for sale by Bugbee & Co.

BERENICE, a Novel, published by Messrs. Phillips, Sampson & Co. of Boston, in elegant style, is a story of the life and adventures of an orphan girl, who was born "on one of the most picturesque of the islands of the three hundred and sixty five which deck the blue bay of Passamaquoddy." The style is what is ordinarily called "high flown," but the story appears interesting.

For sale by Bugbee & Co.

BANGOR, Eastern—Permit me in the name of a number of your subscribers, to dissent from the opinion so presumed in your yesterday's paper, regarding the concert of the evening previous.

So far as Miss Philippe is concerned we can cordially endorse the statement that her voice is one of rare compass and power, and trained by the highest cultivation. It gave us the greatest pleasure to listen to its full round tones although slightly marred by a hoarseness from which she evidently was suffering.

Mr. C. H. Adams' quiet, too, was pleasing and strong, but in Miss Philippe's selection of pieces she was eminently unfortunate—Mr. H. & Mary Jones on the piano-forte, being mostly inaudible to the audience, but to Miss Philippe herself, whom we would fain believe came here in all good faith to do her best to please, although her selection of English songs could have been improved.

But as to Mr. Mey, we cannot find terms too severe, in which to express our censure of his performance.

We would gladly welcome Miss Philippe at any time, and hope her "one concert" will prove an inducement for her to return at some future day, but as we have already hinted, unaccompanied by Mr Mey. A SUBSCRIBER.

ARRIVAL OF THE EMPIRE CITY. TERRIBLE AFFRAY ON THE ISTHMUS. New York, April 29

The steamer Empire City arrived this morning. She left Havana evening of 24th.

A terrible affray occurred on the 15th of April, at Panama, between the American transit passengers and the natives, in which the former had 38 killed and 20 wounded.

The Empire City brings three of the wounded.

A large amount of passengers' baggage, railroad property, and property of individuals residing near the railroad station was destroyed, and also the baggage at the freight house fired. Among the killed were Michael Mellem, of Orleans Co., Vt., R. W. Marks, Pa., M. Dobson, Lt. Mr Stokes, an officer in Walker's army.

It is impossible to get the names of all the dead. Of 14 dead at the railroad freight house only one name—that of Mr. Stokes—was known.

Among the wounded are W. H. Hooter, Teddoore de Sadle Secy of the American Consul at Panama and Mr. Palmer, employee of the Railroad Company; all residents at the Isthmus. Also Gen. O. Field, N. Y., Jos M. Parker, Bangor, A. W. Scoonover, Providence, A. Lathrop & Strong, Me., Patrick O Neal, San Francisco, Nathan Preble, Hancock Co., Ohio, Rev. John Lindwood, late of Grahamville, S. C. All of the above were judiciously attended by steamer and Isthmus physicians.

The passengers upon whom this outrage was committed, were those who left San Francisco the 20th of March in steamer Cortes for San Juan, but we landed at Panama in consequence of the Walker trouble.

A WILLIAM CARONE. We understand that the sentence imposed upon a portion of the Kennebec & Portland Railroad, in Prospect, yesterday, apprehended a young man in the act of placing a heavy timber across the track. They had before attempted to remove obstructions from the road in this vicinity a number of times previous to this, and were on the watch for the offender. The obstruction was placed by a brown grade, just beyond a curve in the road, so that the engineer could not see the fellow's name is Randall—about 25 years of age. He was brought to this city, examined before Judge Paine—held to bail, and placed in charge of Jailer Barker to await the action of the Supreme Court. It is believed that he was instigated by some unprincipled person or persons unknown. State of Maine.

FATAL ACCIDENT. Mr. Robert Noble who was employed by Young & Bampore's Sawmill in Baring, went into the crank pit, on Monday last, to do something about the machinery, and while there another of the hands not aware of it, hoisted the flood-gate and set the mill going, and crushed Mr. Noble so shockingly that he died on Thursday last: he leaves a wife and five children to mourn the untimely end of the world. He was 34 years of age. Calais Advertiser.

A Foot-trip from Bangor to Alster.

It was a splendid afternoon when we left Bangor. The western sky was all aglow with the sunset, and, as the evening advanced, the stars and moon and the green northern lights grew each moment more distinct. The air was frosty air seemed almost to cut like a knife. The business men were all hurrying to their homes, "coffee," wrapped in their cloaks, and the heavy wooden shutters were being put up to with unwonted speed. Everybody seemed to be in a hurry to get to their comfortable firesides.

For several days previous we had been talking of the trip, and had been counting the hours when we might see with our own eyes the famous Alster of the Baltic Free Cities. We had been told that it was a feeble but so mighty a stream, that we had examined old maps of Bangor, and had found that it was not laid down on them. We had asked questions, for we were anxious to see the goodly land called Maine, with its pine forests, where the people are said to live on pork pies for days, and sometimes for weeks—and we had followed the course of the Penobscot, and its many windings of the Alster, from the Elba at Hamburg, to the Travna from Lubeck, and had tried to bring the features of the country before our minds, and to imagine ourselves in the midst of it, fully transported upon skates—or that we were going, on a visit to some friends at a distance. And when we were going, on a visit to some friends at a distance. And when we were going to try the test of the Alster, and to skate on it for miles beyond the common range of skating, we had determined that we would to-morrow start on our trip.

The great gates of the city were not yet closed, but that didn't trouble us, for we knew that the republicans knew a shorter road than the one we took, and in a trice, we were down the steep bank, and on the sloping ramparts, and skating over the glacis, and smooth the of the moat. I found my old skates, which had so often carried me over the ice of Penobscot, and my friend had a pair of his own, and a pair of black second-handed ones, which he had purchased, and we were soon out of the moat, and on the broad bay of the Great Alster.

The Alster makes a junction with the Elbe nearly at right angles. For two or three miles it is a broad lake, and is called the Great Alster. Then you come to the little stream, which is narrow and deep, and which is called the Little Alster. The great many persons were skating to and from on the main skating ground, but we passed them all, and no doubt left them looking at the houses on the ice, where the old Alster runs in the direction of the Police keep on the lookout to sell, and keep skates to let at so much per hour, and most always have the ice swept for a mile over the mile between their two establishments. The gas-lights of the city faded from our sight, and we could no longer hear the sound of the many voices, nor the ringing of the bells from on the smooth surface. The Great Alster lay stretched far before us, and we thought we should find the little Alster, perhaps not quite so much frozen.

Along the shore we saw the country houses of the rich Hamburg merchants standing in the midst of graceful trees, and swimming in the pale bright moon-light, a look of unwonted quiet. Sometimes we followed in the little creeks which led us to the foot of great gardens, where pleasure boats were housed, waiting for the season of active life, and great stone steps led down to the water. Those passing, half a mile apart, brought us beyond all the splendid mansions, and we skirted along the borders of the meadows, which seemed to harden in the ice, and came to the entrance of the Little Alster. A barge lay frozen in, in the middle of the stream, but we did not dare venture on it, for the ice looked suspiciously dark and rotten, and we kept carefully on the very edge of the shore, where a white strip seemed to assure us of its safety. Ever and anon a sharp ringing crack ran across the whole stream, and we started a little, but unfurled and put one foot on shore. But it was nothing, and on we went. Now and then there was no longer ice in the channel, but only a little lince clinging to the banks, and sometimes where a clump of bushes grow out from the shore we durst not venture just but clamber around on the bank, and so we kept on for another half hour, and the smooth dark ice lay beyond the ice kept rippling as we passed it, and at last a sharp turn brought the lights of the little village of Eppendorf in view. We could see the bridge in the distance, but the bank was skirted with projecting bushes, and these left but a thread of ice, and we could go no further. We tried to make ourselves believe that we would go through by morning, but it would all be frozen, and that we could pick our way many miles into the country.

And now we turned to go back but no longer so timid. The way was familiar and we assumed more of confidence and even carelessness. We even dared the little detours we had so carefully avoided before, and passed swiftly round the clumps of bushes, while the ice labored under us and the cracking followed us in on the other side. At last, in one bold attempt, my friend was overtaken. He had been a part of his head away and the seam of his skate under his very feet, and, just as he had turned the point of hazard, and was actually within sight and hearing of the shore, the crisis came and down he went. Fortunately the water was not deep, and he would have found it still more uncomfortably in the freezing atmosphere. But the bottom was only soft mud, and he attempt to get out, but only sank him deeper, till I succeeded in getting hold of his hand and helping him on shore. His boots were full of water, which we emptied out, by lying on his back and kicking at the polar-star. I feared he would freeze, and hurried him on, but in a few minutes he declared himself as comfortable as ever.

And now we came out again on the Great Alster and sped back towards Hamburg. Our return I need give no account, save that notwithstanding my friend's freezing he was quite willing to forego a detour across the bay of the broad stream, and we counted into deep coves, and ran far out into the rich country of "Vinland," or the forest lands, and could just discern great farm-houses, by moonlight, across the wide fields of snow, and could hear the distant calling and answering of the watch dogs. An hour brought us once more to the entrance of the moat. There we stopped a minute to discuss as to how we should make our entrance into the city, whether we should walk nearly a mile to the nearest gate and pay for admittance, or whether we should undertake to go up by the ramparts, and elude the patrolling guard, and thereby save both distance and expense. My friend did not believe it possible, but we both concluded we would be well to try it, as being caught would be nothing terrible—probably only an examination to see if we were smugglers, and perhaps being sent back to come in at the gate. At all events we should have the benefit of the experience, whatever it might be, and so we struck boldly into the moat. Sure enough we had gone but a little way when we were hailed from the ramparts. We halted and pretended not to understand. The sentinel began to expound the law, and still we pretended not to understand, and ran close in beneath him, and called out to him, that we would come up so soon as we could take off our skates, and see what he wanted, which we actually did and listened to his story, that no man dare be on the moat after the closing of the gates, and that all passing must be at the gates, etc. etc.—and we told him that we considered the regulation a very wise one, to prevent smuggling, and then we thought him a polite fellow, and so bidding him good night, left him in a sort of quandary, and went to our rooms.

It was noon the next day before we had completed our preparations to start. But that was no account, for we wanted to spend a night in the country on the way. The distance is not by them fifty miles which we hoped to accomplish before night the next day. The weather had been excessively cold for the last twenty four hours, and we thought the little Alster would now be frozen. At half past 4, we were actually on the ice. Our baggage was confined to the compass of our pockets, a clean collar, a pair of dry stockings, a little English Testament and a little German Song book, with the addition of sundry bread-rolls were all. Thus equipped, in wardrobe and library and larder, we once more left the city and the Great Alster behind. The little stream was nearly frozen, but we deemed it prudent to keep near the banks. We passed Eppendorf, and the bridge, and held our way once more through great meadows. Half an hour longer and we were close upon the great paved way between Hamburg and Lubeck. Thus far we had come along very successfully though sometimes obliged to land for a few steps. But here, alas! the stream divided as we followed it up. One branch crossed the road, and then they led up on either side. We examined our charts in vain. There were no such indications. Not a solitary Dutchman could enlighten us as to which was the most extensive branch, for their ideas had never wandered so far. We concluded, after long deliberation, to strike across the road, for there at least was the best skating. We come upon a large pond, which we followed for a couple of miles, and then, as we tried to run up the sources they grew so beautifully less, that, at the end of another mile we brought up on a little duck-pond in a garden where several children were skating.—To it was of no use kick against the Fates. The children stared at us, and assured us, in "Platt Deutsch," that they didn't know of any river about there. They had heard of the Alster, but that was down by Hamburg somewhere.

We took our skates, and started by the sun, in a general direction towards the North, trusting to strike some road. We came upon some woodmen chopping, and they told us if, we, by exception for ten minutes through the woods, we should come to a little village. This we did, and got some coffee at the "Wirthshaus," and the accommodating landlady came out into the street with us, and pounted out the way to Langenhorn, where we should once more strike the great paved way. It was about two hours distant, and then we should not be more than a league from where we first crossed it. We hurried on. As we came upon high ground, there—before my eyes,—if there were't the steeples of Hamburg in plain sight, and looked close by. The land was, however, very level between, and they were in fact some eight or ten miles distant.

In an hour and a half we once more struck the great road. There were splendid rows of trees on either side, and broad walks. Of these walks the rain had fallen with the snow, and now they were one sheet of ice. We put on our skates again, and drove on, up hill and down, by great loaded wagons, and by the houses, and by the green painted benches that stood under the trees, where the weary travelers might rest themselves. The people looked at us in wonderment, and doubtless thought we had chosen a curious place to exercise. At the end of three miles the skating and the sidewalk ended, and, in fact, we were perfectly ready to change our style of travel, for the ice was rough and our skates had made large acquaintance with great stones.

The sun was just setting, but it grew scarcely any darker, for the moon was magnificently bright, and like the fields were all white. Here and there we stopped to enquire of our progress, and how far the next stage might be; before we should find a Wirthaus. Once, an old lady, whom we found peeling small potatoes, was so surprised to hear that we were actually born in America, that she dropped her wooden bowl, held up both hands, and came near dropping herself from the wooden bench. Meanwhile, as evening came on, we trudged along over the smooth way. The snow in our path was as even an hard as a house floor, being rolled under the enormously broad wagon wheels. Not a solitary sleigh or sled was to be seen. Everything went on wheels,—and yet nobody's brains could ever invent more perfet sleighing. We wished that we had certain accommodations, the remembrance of which we had brought from a distant land, but wishing was of no use, save to pass away the time. A more perfectly fair, like night I do not remember ever to have seen. The horizon seemed away below us, and we seemed to see half the southern as well as the northern celestial hemisphere, and yet the "Little Bear" wagged his tail just overhead. We could almost imagine ourselves swimming over the great beds of snow, hardly able to discern where earth and sky met, both were so bright.

At half-past seven we stopped at the great, old fashioned, one-story Wirthaus at Rethford. We were about eighteen miles from Hamburg. We were comfortably disposed in a huge "best room," and it delighted us once more to rub our shins before a good wood fire, if it was in a homely old earthen stove. The landlady served us an excellent supper, with the best tea I have tasted in Germany, all of which we praised so much that I began to feel apprehensive for our bill the next morning. The landlord sat and visited with us for a long time, and talked of the state of his country, and of the last war, in which Holstein, in the settlement, became the Dukedom of Denmark. He spoke butterly of the German Bond, and said, that but for their interference Holstein would have still been free. His eyes flashed, as he said in a low voice, "We shall yet be free." I took out my little song book—and read the first line of their patriotic song—

Slesswick—Holstein ses—surrounded—

He grasped it from my hand and read the whole aloud. "The Danish government will not allow us to sing it now," said he, "but the day will come when we may sing it!" We retired at an early hour. Each of us brought up against a jug of warm water at the foot of the bed, which proved quite a consolation, for the night was butter cold.

The next morning, we drank our hot milk and ate our nice bread and butter, and paid our bill to the hostess, of three marks, or about eighty-four cts each, (half of which was doubtless for the gentility of the affair), and the intelligent host drove us a chaxt of the whole route, and we set forth. At about half past eight—horrible dictu!—that cold creature called the sun, stuck his head over some pine trees and threw us a cheerless glance. It took him nearly half an hour to get the whole of himself up.

We reached Oldesloh, eighteen miles, about noon, where we dined for about seven cents each. We had now some twelve miles to Lubeck. The Travs ran many times close to our way in the fields below, and we sometimes went on it, but there was no skating. The miles began to grow long, and we counted every hundredth on the fractional mile stones at the side of the way. At last, as we ascended a high hill, the spires of Lubeck rose against the gray sky before us. They seemed but a stones-throw distant, and we could hardly believe the milestones which said one mile and thirty hundredths, or about six English miles.

The slow distance dragged along. The sun was setting and the gates were closing as we came up through the long lines of Lundens to the city. A skulking, or about two cents, was demanded as, and we were soon seated before the stove in the old Hotel of the "Five Towers."

An enumeration of the population of Boston, just taken, shows again of 16,31 per cent. since 1850. Thus it mostly foreign, the increase of the native population being less than one per cent. The census of 1855 is the first one which shows the foreign population of Boston to outnumber the Americans. The total American population number 75,922 or 47,02 per cent., and the foreign number 85,567, or 53,98 per cent.—the entire population being 161,489 consisting of 77,587 males and 84,872 females.

THE PACE OF REFORMERS. We have been Whig from the first inauguration of the party, and are Whig still, to the back bone. Let any principle involved in the support of Wm. H. Harrison or Henry Clay, come up again to be decided at a presidential election, and we shall be found fighting in the Whig ranks.

But while the objects that then distinguished the Whig party are already decided by time and circumstances, or laid on the shelf by common consent, and other issues arise, of the highest importance to the cause of liberty and humanity, we are not content with the mere name of throwing a useless Whig vote, with a few thousands who may choose still to act under that name without end or aim.

Massachusetts will probably throw 150,000 votes at the fall election, of which it is not probable that more than fifteen or twenty thousand will pass under the Whig name; and if they have any objects that are to be steadily published in continuing to make nominations and voting under that name, except to show that they are "straight-out Whigs," we do not know what they are.

It is not so at the South. The moment their one great object of extending, securing and building up slavery, is in danger of meeting any obstruction, they—Whigs, Democrats or Know Nothings—drop everything else, and unite as one man to support and extend slavery.

At the North the Democratic party, or at least all who still adhere to that organization, and support Franklin Pierce, are complete tools of the South, they are just as good supporters of slavery as so many Southern slaveholders. It has been and is their plan to help the South rule the nation, and in return, the Southern slave aristocracy is always to bestow on them all the offices in the Northern States that are appointed by the Executive. If any of them are rejected by votes of the North, as Senators or Representatives in Congress, the loss is already made up to them; they are made collectors, cabinet ministery, or foreign ambassadors.

Now what interest can a Whig here have in supporting such a state of things, either directly or indirectly? And how is it possible for a few thousand Whig votes, thrown in each Northern State, to operate other wise than as a decoy to keep a few thousand votes from the party which takes the lead, under whatever name, in opposing the spread of slavery northward?

Will a useless vote, cast for some Whig who half opposes the Kansas usurpation, and thinks it best to stop agitation just where slave holders wish it to stop, satisfy any New England conscience? Will the groundless pretence that all the respectable Whigs are "straight out," and only the "rift-raft," which it is a benefit to lose, are gone over to the Republicans in the face of the fact that the straight ticket last fall would have averaged just as respectable in their view as those who remained, if they had only voted with them—will such a groundless and futile idea satisfy any Northern man directly or indirectly in aiding the election of a Pierce or a Douglas?—Haverhill Gaz

AN UNNATURAL MOTHER.—Some few weeks since a young lady called at the Readfield R. R. Station, and left a bundle, then proceeded on towards Hallowell. A while after she left, the bundle was found to contain a child some four or five weeks of age. A carriage was dispatched after the mother, who was brought back to receive her child. She afterwards attempted to abandon her child while passing through Farmington.—Lewiston Times.

GROWTH OF ROCKLAND.—The Democrat, of this young and growing city, says there will probably be about three hundred new dwelling houses erected the coming season in Rockland, besides other buildings for business purposes.

ILLINOIS.

New York, April 30.

The Illinois arrived at 3 o'clock, with 900 passengers and $2 000,000 treasure.

News unimportant

The Indians in Oregon continued their hostility and have recently made several successful attacks upon the whites. They had captured the steamer Mary on the Columbia River, and killed a large number of citizens at the Cascades, and destroyed the town, and were at last dates fighting with the forces at the Block House.

At Cornell a Prairie, in the Washington territory the volunteers had a skirmish with the Indians, killing 40 and routing the remainder Congressional.

WASHINGTON, 30th

The House Bills relative to the appropriation for the improvement of the Harbor of Sheboygan and making Columbus, Ky., a port of delivery passed

On motion of Mr. Skinner, of Mass, a resolution was adopted directing the Finance Committee to consider the expediency of providing by law all articles of foreign manufacture obtained exclusively from submerged and derelict wrecks whether raised on our own or foreign waters may be admitted free of duty, and that the Secretary of the Treasury in his discretion may be authorized to remit the duties to which such articles are now subject.

Mr Briggs then rose and defended the naval retiring board, replying to the recent speeches of Houston and others, and complimenting the official conduct of the Secretary of the Navy.

Mr Adams complained of the injustice done by the board to naval officers, and earnestly insisted that their wrongs should be redressed. Adjourned

HOUSE —Mr Washburn, of Illinois, from the Committee on Commerce, reported a bill establishing collection districts, designating ports of entry, and modifying the revenue laws. He said the measure had been in progress several years, and had been thoroughly examined by the Committees on Commerce in both Houses, and at the office of the Secretary of the Treasury There was a great and imperative necessity for the passage of the bill. He did not wish to go to the Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, for that would be the end of it.

Mr Jones, Dem, of Tennessee, said the Bill comprised 350 pages, the largest ever presented in Congress therefore ample time should be afforded for examination, and the bill not forced through under the operation of the previous question.

Mr Fuller, Dem, of Maine, remarked that the bill was as perfect as it could be. It was principally a codification of existing laws, which are now spread over 4000 acts, commencing with the adoption of the constitution

The further consideration of the bill was then postponed to the 2d Monday in June.

Mr Herbert referring to the recent massacre at Panama said this was not the first time such offences had been committed in that quarter — It was high time the Government should take measures to put an end to such proceedings. If our citizens are to receive no relief the sooner the country is so informed the better He offered a resolution, which was adopted, instructing the Committee on Foreign Affairs to inquire if any and what further legislation was necessary to secure the lives and property of American citizens passing over the Isthmus of Panama.

The Indian appropriation bill was then taken up in committee.

Mr Buffington and Mr. Meacham severally spoke against the extension of slavery, and in favor of the admission of Kansas into the Union with the free State constitution already presented to the House. The latter gave notice of his intention to introduce a resolution instructing the committee on territory to report a bill for that purpose.

The Indian bill was reported to the House without even being read, or one word said relative to it while standing in the committee.—Adjourned.

War Steamer Ordered to Aspinwall.

Mr David[illegible], President of the Pacific mail steamship company, having sent a telegraph despatch to Gen. Lane, of the Oregon, relative to the riot at Panama, the latter this evening called on President Pierce, communicating the request of Mr. Davidge, that a vessel of war be sent to Aspinwall for the protection of the Americans there.

and received assurances that the matter would be attended to with the least possible delay There will probably be a Cabinet meeting on the subject to-morrow

Second Dispatch. We learn that the Secretary of the Navy has already ordered the United States Steamer Fulton to proceed forthwith from Pensacola.

MONTREAL, April 30.

The new suspension bridge over the Montmorency, gave away this morning, the whole structure, with a man, two horses and cart, was carried over the falls. The fate of the man and women have not yet been learned.

Whig State Convention.

BALTIMORE, April 30.

The old line Whig State Convention assembled to-day, and passed resolutions endorsing the platform of the Whig convention and deprecating the introduction of politics. The different counties of the State were requested to send delegates to the Convention to be held in July, finally to decide the course to be pursued by the Whigs of Maryland.

Democratic State Convention.

BALTIMORE, April 30.

The Democratic State convention met to-day and elected Walter R. Mitchell, of Goldsboro Elector from this State. Resolutions recommending Jas. Buchanan as the candidate for the Presidency were passed by a vote of 81 to 9.

California Steamers,

Carrying the United States Mail

5th and 20th, of each Month.

Reduced Prices. 100 lbs. Baggage Free.

Through Tickets, including transit of the Isthmus, via Panama.

By order of the Postmaster General, the United States Mail Steamers will hereafter be despatched from New York direct to Aspinwall, on the 5th and 20th of each month.

Passengers are landed at the Railroad Depot at Aspinwall, and conveyed across to the Pacific Steamers without any extra expense. This is the only line giving entire Through Tickets, including meals, on the Isthmus.

Transit made in four hours, entirely by daylight, thus avoiding the great exposure by night in open boats to fever and ague, and 200 miles of dangerous lake and river navigation over rocks and shoals.

Arrangements have now been completed so that the regular U. S. Pacific Mail Steamer will leave Panama for San Francisco immediately on arrival of the Atlantic Mails and passengers, thus securing passengers by the Mail Line a sure and short passage, without any detention on the Isthmus.

☞Tickets must be signed by one of the Company's Agents before they will be recognized by the Agent at Panama, and Tickets thus signed can be obtained of the only authorized Agent for the Atlantic and Pacific Mail Steamship Companies, in this city. C. L. BARTLETT, Agent,

The Great European Cough Remedy.

Important to the Consumptive and the Public generally. The celebrated

Universal Cough Mixture

IS a safe and effectual Remedy for Coughs of every description, whether in children or adults, of recent or long standing.

PREPARED ONLY BY

REV. WALTER CLARK,

Sole Proprietor, Cornish, Maine.

Within the last twelve months the sale of the Universal Cough Mixture has been very large in the State of Maine alone and has given universal satisfaction. Its extraordinary power in relieving and curing cases of the Chest and Lungs, even when considered, and especially in bad cases and long standing Coughs, it speedily produces a most pleasant sensation in the throat, relieves the coughing, it promotes free and easy expectoration, and by removing the exciting cause of the cough, it frequently enables the sufferer to obtain quiet and refreshing sleep, when for weeks before deprived of that blessing.

☞Sold in trial bottles, 25 cents each, large bottles, each containing the quantity of two small ones, 75 cents each.

Extract of a letter from Daniel Bourdonnais, Esq., of Gorham, Maine.

Gorham, Me., Feb. 7th, 1853.

To Rev. Walter Clark. Dear Sir—I have used your Mixture, which I bought of Asa Pratt, Esq., and found it a most wonderful cough medicine. It has had the desired effect on my wife. She had been troubled with a cough for two years—that bottle entirely relieved it.

From Rev. Jesse Hoyt, Lewiston Falls.

Rev. Jesse Hoyt, Lewiston Falls, writes:—Rev. Walter Clark—Sir—Every bottle of the Universal Cough Mixture which you left with me, it sold—I have had numerous applications for more. As far as I have heard from those who have used it, it has given perfect satisfaction. I have used it myself, purchased one large bottle, and have taken only one third of it, who is perfectly well, and has had no cough since. He says it is the best medicine in the world, and cannot be recommended too highly.

From Mr. Fletcher Chuck, agent for Monument, Maine.

Rev. Sir—A number of the most astonishing cures have been effected by your Universal Cough Mixture in this place. Several who had caughs of three years standing, and others who have been doctored six months, and receiving any benefit, have been speedily relieved by the use of your Universal Cough Mixture.

From Mrs. Hubbard, Thorndike, Me.

Rev. Walter Clark. Dear Sir—I have used one bottle of your Universal Cough Mixture in my family, and have found it a most excellent medicine. I had previously taken several kinds of medicine, but found no relief, until I procured a bottle of the above recommended Cough Mixture, which in a few days from the time I began to use it entirely cured me.

MARGARET F. HUBBARD.

☞Sold wholesale by the Proprietor, Cornish, Maine.

General Agents for Maine—G. F. Sargent & Co., Druggists, No. 8 corner Smith's Block, Bangor—and H. H. Hay, Portland.

Also, sold wholesale and retail, by L. Aldus, The other and Field & Harlow, and at retail by all druggists in the city—at Hermont Parker; Orland—Emerson; Penobscot, Wardwell & Co. and A. ARNOLD'S COMBINED

FOOT-STOVE, LANTERN,

....AND....

NURSE-LAMP.

ALBERT NOYES having purchased the exclusive right for manufacturing and vending in Penobscot county, this above, valuable invention, is now prepared to offer them to the public.

As a FOOT STOVE, it answers an excellent purpose, as it can be sufficiently heated in less than one minute to warm and dry the feet in the coldest winter weather, and will be found to be an indispensable article in traveling. It is heated by oil, alcohol, or fluid lamp, the flame of which is protected from every external object.

As a LANTERN, it answers all the usual purposes, and is less likely to be overset, or get broken, and can be used as a house lamp with equal advantage.

As a NURSE LAMP, and in cases of sickness, it is of great advantage in keeping drinks or medicines warm, beside giving the light desired, and for cooking in small quantities. For making tea, &c., it will be found very convenient, as a quart of water can be boiled in fifteen minutes, and a tea-kettle in the same length of time.

In fact, the various purposes to which this neat apparatus can be put may be readily conjectured by every one. No further description is required, as no one can misunderstand its general utility. To say any thing more respecting its adaptability to a hundred purposes would just be telling what our readers can all see at once for themselves.

For sale, wholesale and retail, at

No's 16, 17 and 19 Commercial Street, Bangor.

A MARVELLOUS REMEDY

For a Marvellous Age!!

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT!!

The Grand External Remedy.

By the aid of a microscope we see millions of little openings on the surface of our bodies.—Through these this Ointment, when rubbed on the skin, is carried to any organ or inward part. Diseases of the Kidneys, Disorders of the Liver, affections of the Heart, inflammation of the Lungs, Asthmas, Coughs and Colds, are by its means effectually cured. Every housewife knows that salt passes through bone or meat of any thickness.—This healing Ointment far more readily penetrates through any bone or fleshy part of the living body, curing the most dangerous inward complaints, that cannot be reached by other means.

Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, and Scorbutic Humors.

No remedy has ever done so much for the cure of diseases of the Skin, whatever form they may assume, as this Ointment. No case of Salt Rheum, Sores, Sore Head, Scrofula, or Erysipelas can long withstand its influence. The inventor has travelled over many parts of the globe, visiting the principal hospitals, dispensing this Ointment, giving advice as to its application, and has thus been the means of restoring countless numbers to health.

Sore Legs, Sore Breasts, Wounds and Ulcers.

Some of the most scientific surgeons now rely solely on the use of this wonderful Ointment, when having to cope with the worst cases of sores, wounds, ulcers, glandular swellings, and tumors. Professor Holloway has, by command of the Allied Governments, despatched to the hospitals of the East, large shipments of this Ointment, to be used under the direction of the Medical Staff, in the worst cases of wounds. It will cure any ulcer, glandular swelling, stiffness or contraction of the joints, even of 20 years' standing.

Piles and Fistulas.

These and other similar distressing complaints can be effectually cured if the Ointment be well rubbed in over the parts affected, and by otherwise following the printed directions around each pot.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following cases:

Bunions,	Piles,
Burns,	Rheumatism,
Chapped Hands	Salt Rheum,
Chilblains,	Skin Diseases,
Fistulas,	Sore Legs,
Gout,	Sore Breasts,
Lumbago,	Sore Heads,
Mercurial Eruptions,	Sore Throats,
	Sores of all Kinds,
	Stiff Joints,
	Ulcers,
	Venereal Sores,
	Wounds of all Kinds.

Sold at the Manufactories of Professor Holloway, 80 Maiden, Lane, New York, and 244 Strand, London, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers of Medicines throughout the United States and the civilized world, in Pots, at 25 cts., 62 cents, and $1 each.

There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

N. B. Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each Pot.

Cheap & Convenient Building.

Door, Sash and Blind Factory,

A. DUNBAR

HAS been very successful in completing several contracts for Door Frames, Doors, Window Frames and Sashes, and Blinds, for good dwelling-houses and other buildings to be erected in this city, the coming season. He has excellent workmen in his employ, and has superior stock, so that he is now able to supply to those about to build the best articles of Door Frames, Window Frames, Sashes, and Blinds, made to any dimensions and of superior quality, either for a white building or for a less quantity. The trouble and expense of building is very much lessened by having these articles made separately, so that the carpenters have only to put them in their places in the structure.

This business has now become so well systemized that only a small margin is left in knowing before-hand the cost of a dwelling-house, while the work is of a uniform excellent quality.

Any one interested can examine specimens of the work at the factory, near the Rose Place, or at the store of M. S. Jackson, on Exchange-st., and at either place any article may be obtained or large quantities ordered.

Mr. Dunbar is also prepared to furnish Window Blinds ready painted, and will hang them at the shortest notice.

By long experience, and by determined perseverance, the subscriber is now enabled to sell his customers, both in quality and price, and so well organized in the business that no man should now think of building in the old and slow and imperfect methods.

The Lost Bank Note.

BY A. [illegible]

From the present [illegible] sometimes look back [illegible] tquals and his struggles [illegible] in the country, I feel as though [illegible] been fought and the victory won. [illegible] life has been a busy, bustling [illegible] here in the quiet library, [illegible] the well thumbed volumes of [illegible] Chitty, and their fellows, I [illegible] had completely emerged from the [illegible] world, and that my [illegible] menced with the dark [illegible].

In thirty odd years of [illegible] been an actor of many a [illegible] may possess a set of [illegible] some interest with [illegible] for my own amusement [illegible] the edification of the [illegible] my narrative may not be [illegible] transcribe from the [illegible] dent from my experience [illegible].

I was seated in [illegible] in hunting up the [illegible] some importance, which [illegible] opened, and a [illegible] more than seventy [illegible] into the room. [illegible] she had a complexion [illegible] failed not to attract the [illegible] holder.

She was quite [illegible] with mustache [illegible] stowed upon her. [illegible] gentle manners and [illegible] thy. Her step [illegible] sured me that she [illegible] but I was not [illegible].

A visitor [illegible] would have called [illegible] answer, [illegible] resuggation which [illegible] search in a [illegible].

She advanced [illegible] closed my book [illegible].

Mr. Dexter [illegible] semble with [illegible] I signified [illegible] sought, and [illegible] which her [illegible] precisely, for [illegible] tirely beyond [illegible].

After allowing [illegible] cover her self-possession, [illegible] her business with [illegible].

"I have a [illegible] tears filled her eyes, [illegible] stricted her [illegible].

Her heart seemed [illegible] bearings.

"May I know what [illegible] moderating my voice, so as [illegible] the encouragement [illegible] convey.

Alice Wade, [illegible].

"You seem to be [illegible] of you to be [illegible] so bad as you suppose.

"May heaven send [illegible].

"Take your own time, Miss Wade. Perhaps you had better wait a few moments, you feel better able to proceed, and in the mean time I assure you I am here to serve you.

"Thank you sir," sobbed she, and I turned to my law books, so as not to embarrass her by seeming to wait for her to recover her calmness.

"But I had lost the clew to the investigation, and though I feed my eyes upon the book, it was only to think of the subject maiden by the side. I started all her sobbing ceased, and then carefully approached the object of her visit.

"I am taking up your time, Mr. Dexter, but I have heard that you were a kind and charitable gentleman, and I have ventured to seek your aid.

It was a very blunt compliment, but I doubted not its sincerity. There could be no hypocrisy in that gentle countenance, nor, neither with a lot of seasoned Birch, Pine, Basswood Lumber. Also, about 10,000 cubic feet of Logs. Enquire at No. 3 Union Block, Water-st.
